M.I.A. Contest Work Closes Successfully

On Friday evening, Saturday afternoon and evening the Stake Finals in the Mutual Contest work were held. In the Stake House Friday evening the Musical numbers were contested, before a crowd which comfortably filled the auditorium, and the crowd remained full of interest to the end. The Stake M.I.A. Officers were on the stage, and Paul Dahl took charge. Rhyddid Williams of Lethbridge was adjudicator of the evening, and at the conclusion of the numbers gave his decisions, also made very helpful suggestions to the singers, and expressed his surprise to see so much talent, and such splendid work being done. All the suggestions were timely, practical, and cannot help but make for better work in future contests. His Welsh wit kept the crowd entertained so that all spectators as well as contestants thoroughly enjoyed his remarks.

The winners were as follows: the contesting groups being given in the order of their standing:—

Male Chorus, singing "The Long Day Closes" and "March of the Nations" with the exception of Raymond Second Ward who sang "On Wings of Song" or their b number instead of "March of the Nations" Raymond 1st Ward, Stirling, Raymond Second Ward, Welling Ward.

Ladies Chorus, singing "Corinna" as an a number and "On Divine Redeemer" as a b number except Magrath Second who sang "That is Jean" as a b number. They stood as follows: Stirling Ward, Raymond 1st, Magrath 2nd, and Raymond Second.

Mixed Chorus, singing "Sanctus" as an a number, and "The Kerry Dancers" as a b number except Stirling who sang "In Time of Roses" as a b number. They stood as follows: Raymond First, Stirling, Raymond Second, and Welling.

In the String Trio, there was only one entry, from the Magrath Second Ward, and while this required no special adjudication, Mr. Williams was high in his praise of these three youthful musicians, and stated that during this number he was able to sit back and enjoy himself, because he did not have to pass a decision on it.

STORIES AND SPEECHES

The Story Telling and Speeches were held in the Stake House Saturday afternoon commencing at 2 p.m. The merit of all the stories and speeches this year was the equal, if not superior to any previous contest, and shows that at least this portion of the Contest Work is having its intention realized, in training the youth in speaking and story telling, and training the mind to think when a person is standing before an audience as well as when alone. When young people between the ages of fifteen and seventeen can tell stories so forcibly that adults are moved to tears by their reality, then we say they are making good. The speeches, most of which were on the Word of Wisdom, were equally as good, and showed a depth of thought seldom sounded or appreciated in the youth of today. One judge was chosen from each ward and these acted as judges on all of the numbers.

JUNIOR STORY:—Mike Miller of Magrath First won and Miss Peterson of Welling was second.

VANGUARD STORY:—Wen Ly Jack Coomb, Raymond First; Ella Hiegrass of Raymond Second, next.

"M" MEN'S SPEECH:—Wen by John Volsey of Magrath First, with Wayne Mathin of Magrath Second a close second.

CLEANER GIRL'S SPEECH:—Wen by Miss Jessie Bourne of Magrath First Ward, and Miss Mathin of the Magrath Second Ward stood next.

DRAMA AND DANCING

The Opera House was packed to the doors on Saturday night when the finals in the Drama and Drama took place. District eliminations had been held for the Drama at Stirling and Magrath Second Ward, and at these tryouts the Magrath Second and the Raymond Second won the right to meet in the Stake Finals, and this was on Saturday night as noted.

The contest drama was "In the Secret Places," and for a one-act play it held the interest of the audience from start to finish of its 45 minutes. The Magrath troupe played first and gave a splendid interpretation of their respective parts, but at times they could hardly be heard, probably because they were not accustomed to the Opera House. The play was well cast, and all the parts handled well. A hearty round of applause was given them when the curtain went down.

As soon as the stage could be fixed up, the Raymond Second Ward players presented the same play, and of course during the performance comparisons were made. In the mind at least as to the excellence of the two performances. There was little to choose between the two. Both were well costumed, well coached, the characters were at home in their parts, and were par excellence all through. Mrs. L. S. Taylor and Mrs. Passey directed the Magrath players, and Miss Iris Jones the Raymond troupe, and many were heard to remark that they would not like to judge between the two troupes.

There was plenty of excitement when the judges announced the Raymond Second Ward as winners, by a margin of six points. Mrs. Sterndale Bennett and Mrs. W. C. Bryans of Lethbridge were the judges, and remarked on the excellency of the two troupes and the difficulty they found in arriving at a decision. The decision was received with loud applause and all seemed to be well satisfied. The judges gave some very good pointers to make better performances in the future, and complimented both companies on their splendid acting, coaching and costuming.

The Contest Dance was the last number on the program. Four wards were represented in this feature, there being two couples from each Ward, as follows:—Magrath Second, Miss Grace and Howard Fletcher and Miss Kathleen Holman and Wayne Mathin; Stirling, Miss Chloe and Edward Peterson, and Miss Brandley and Clinton Hardy; Raymond Second Ward, Miss LaPriel Passey and Earl Zemp, and Miss Sybil Bacon and Joe Strong; Raymond First Ward, Miss Emma Hicken and Blair Cook, and Miss Clarice McMullin and Uriel B. Nalder.

All contestants danced the dance through once together, and then each pair of contestants with their own accompanist went through the dance. It was a graceful dance all the way through, and a long haul from our present day ball room jazz and various struggles we are wont to see.

There was some misunderstanding as to the outcome, and to give all a fair chance, all contestants who danced Saturday night are dancing again tonight in the Opera House, and Mr. W.O. Robinson of Salt Lake City will be the judge.

This was followed by dancing until midnight. Joe McLean and his rhythm kings played.

News Notes

Earlier this year comes early, but with eggs at 12c. per dozen everyone should be able to have all they want of them.

A roll of Street Car Tickets saved the life of Motorman Samuel Emery according to doctors, when he was held up Saturday night. One of the bandits apparently was over wrought as he shot Emery before he could get his hands to his shoulders. The shot appeared to have unnerved the trio as they fled in a car and let the man and his money intact. The bullet went through his left arm, hit the tickets in his vest pocket and was deflected down into the abdomen. It was aimed for his heart doctors said.

1932 Sugar Beet Contract Is Ratified

Sugar beet growers of Southern Alberta and Canadian Sugar Factor-ies Ltd., have come to terms on the 1932 beet contract and the acreage sign-up will commence immediately. Beet seed is already going out and it is expected that everything will be in readiness for the drills to take the field just as soon as the seeding seas on opens.

Growers in session at the Y.M.C.A. Monday accepted the proposal of the company. The new contract carries a $5 guaranteed minimum price for beets per ton and provides for an increase of 12 cents per ton in the price schedule on the basis of a 18.34 per cent beet.

The cash labor contract was fixed at $18 an acre, $2 less than last year. However, beet workers operating on a contract will receive a bonus on yields of over 10 tons of 65 cents per ton, but if the yield falls below 10 tons there will be a 40 cent reduction per ton.

The silo clause of the contract providing for a payment of 40 cents a ton on beets sliced according to specifications remains unchanged.

PAPER MULCH

Paper mulch in the vegetable garden is now passed the experimental stage, and results obtained at both private and Government places would indicate that under certain conditions this new method of hurrying growth has some decided advantages. The paper is quite similar to the ordinary black building kind, though it is tougher, so that it will stand a fair amount of traffic and weathering. It may be obtained from practically any seedman in different widths to suit the particular vegetable being grown. After the soil is thoroughly prepared for seeding, the paper is fastened down with long home-made staples of cheap black wire, between the rows, with only an inch or so of space between strips for the seed. In the case of tomatoes, cabbage, and other plants, these are inserted in holes punched in the paper, and those vegetables planted in hills are handled in the same way. This mulch, not only keeps down practically all weed growth but it also heats up the soil and stimulates very quick and very early growth. Any one who has laid his hand on a tar paper roof when the sun is shining will understand the principle upon which this new method of gardening is based. After early crops of peas, spinach and head lettuce have been used, later things may be brought on while the paper is in place.

SWEET PEAS

Most of the difficulty in growing good sweet peas is due to late planting. For best, or even satisfactory results, these flowers must be sown just as early in the spring as it is possible to dig the ground. In most parts of the country, this will mean March or early April. The very finest blooms are produced in these few days of Canada where the ground is high and the nights cool, although with the proper method this flower may be grown almost anywhere. It must make its growth during the early cool weather and the root system must go deep down into the soil. Dig a trench about a foot wide and two feet deep, and into this put a six-inch layer of decayed leaves, well-rotted manure or other material, and on top two inches of fine garden soil. The seed is planted in this, about three inches apart and an inch deep, and as growth starts the trench is gradually filled in, in order to encourage a very deep root development. At least three feet of climbing support in the form of brush, strings, or poultry netting should be provided. Soak thoroughly in water during dry weather, and it is a good thing to give one application of liquid manure or garden commercial fertilizer dissolved in water, during the early stages of growth. Blooming should start in July, and if one wants to have this continue until frost, pick the flowers daily, making absolutely sure that no seed pods are allowed to develop.

SEED

Seed is the very foundation of good gardens, and about the only factor over which the owner has absolute control. As the cost in any case is but a few cents there should be no temptation to sacrifice quality, but only the very best should be used, and this obtained from Canadian sources in order that one gets seed selected with Canadian conditions in mind. The use of seed saved from the home garden cannot be recommended as this is almost sure to be very mixed. Unless one goes to the trouble of screening individual flowers from bees and insects, and cross pollenizing, it is absolutely impossible to prevent mixing of colors in flowers and of types in vegetables. Then, too, in order to secure earliness and quality, it is often necessary that seed be secured from a district where the season is much longer than our own.

LAWN REPAIRS

Early Spring is the proper time to attend to those bare spots in the lawn. One can sometimes re-seed these by sowing during one of the last snow storms. In this case, no cultivation is used, the melting snow carrying the seed into the soil. If we leave the work until later, we should stir up the bare spots thoroughly with a rake, sprinkle liberally with a mixture of good lawn grass seed, roll or pound thoroughly, and cover with a bit of brush or poultry netting to keep the birds away. At this time, too, an application of good fertilizer will act as a spring tonic. Most of the trouble with weeds in a lawn traces to starved conditions. Good healthy well-fed grass will crowd out most weeds, but the other kind is not in a position to offer much resistance.

TRAVEL WITHOUT TEARS

"Travel without tears" would be an apt slogan for two trans-Canada all expense tours which will be operated this summer in July and August by the Canadian National Railways.

Not only are all the ordinary details of long distance travel attended to by the sponsors of the tours, but even the laundry problem has been adequately looked after. According to the tour plans which have just been issued, arrangements have been made for soiled linen and socks and other articles of apparel to be laundered, ironed and returned in their pristine loveliness while the tourists are spending the day viewing points of interest in Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver, Jasper and Banff. Delivery of mail to tourists enroute will also be possible through arrangements which have been made with the post office.

B.C. -- Alberta Hoop Series, Lethbridge

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Nilsson

Hryna, Utah, March 19, 1932

Dear Parents,

On the 30th. of March you will have been married a half century. On that day you will be able to look down the years into a vanishing past with the feeling of persons who have been able to guide their powers always to the doing of honorable work.

As one recalls what that work has been, he is moved to admit with all the respect and admiration that he has that the years have been fruitful years. Recently all Utah did utmost honor to the people who stand first in its veneration—those hardy sons of toil who walked boldly westward, the sun always on their faces, bringing to a land of death the green of crops and the laughter of children. These were the conquerors of one frontier, which performance, taking as it does more of the test of body and heart than is given to ordinary mortals, may well be conceded a high place on the honor roll of any nation. For those who have had enough of body and heart to carry life to two frontiers and see each to its adulthood surely there must be reserved rewards beyond those of earth. That is, if Heaven—as it surely must—loves to see humanity with room enough about to build its course freely, and make a new start under pure skies, from which refreshment can be carried back to the crowded and corrupt places of the world.

This is what one sees, dear parents, when he looks at you at your accomplishment as anyone might look at it, seeing the large view though he should not know you yourselves as persons. It is but a partial view and perhaps unreal to those who are absent you everyday. That is explained in part by the fact that we cannot feel the significance of events from nearby. Very few of those whose names we hold sacred now were then quite unusual when they were upon the earth. But although those who are nearer to you may not see such pictures, their hearts are warmer for you. All your sons and daughters must feel as this one does that your achievement, not only in subduing new lands but in lofty and lovable character, must ever rest high above theirs and ever be a goal and pattern for their sons and daughters, as it is for them.

Persons beyond seventy years of life are often looked upon with pity because of their frailty of limb, the senility of their minds, or the sadness with which they look backward, as upon things done, with nothing left to do and nothing with which to do it. What a reversal of that order does one find in yourselves. You, Dad, with your strength yet to do as much bodily labor as any of your sons and a brain that sees quickly to the heart of practical and spiritual things. And you, Mother, who must have had the Goddess of Mirth for a god-mother, will always be merry, of mad and quick of jolly laughter and so forever young—one around whom young and old will always crowd.

Your Golden Wedding! To you and any pair who have spent half a hundred years together without any of those breaks that commonly attend on weak humanity they must be gold en, a golden that betokens all things done in love and in the warm light of earned contentment. Such an influence must go on and never stop until the earth itself shall stop.

On this, your great day of great days, we, your sons and daughters, thank you for the parting you have given us and give to you with all our hearts our wishes for many, many years of continued health and happiness.

A SON

JACKS WILL MEET COAST QUINT IN ARENA

TELEGRAM FROM VARSITY TEAM OFFICIALLY DE-CLARES JACKS ALBERTA CHAMPS

WILL ARRANGE TO SEAT 2,000 FANS.

Dave Powelson, manager of the Union Jacks, was a visitor at the Herald office on Tuesday. Dave is elated over his team's winning the Alberta senior hoop championship for the second year in succession, for win it they have. He had in his pocket a wire from the management of the Varsity quint, the only other team which his team should meet in the title race. "Lack of funds makes it impossible for us to play you. Congratulations", thus reads the wire.

Thus the Raymond Hoopes have captured the Alberta title by default and stand ready to meet the British Columbia winners on Apr. 11 and 12. And here's another important announcement Dave is responsible for. Arrangements have been made with the Rotary Club of Lethbridge, managers of the Lethbridge Arena for the use of that large structure in which to play the series with the coast quint, whichever it may be. A large regulation size floor will be laid to conform in every detail with the official requirements.

The floor will be laid near the west end of the arena and Mr. Powelson feels that fully 2,000 fans can be handled. Chairs will be placed on the ground level near the playing floor for those who wish a better vantage point to see the game and different gate charges will be levied for different seats in the arena.

Gates of the arena were opened on Tuesday afternoon and workmen began taking out the ice and it is expected that arrangements for the hoop series will proceed rapidly from now on.

On this Dave is sure of, however, and that is that not one hoop-hole will be given for the visiting team to back out of the series the way they did a year ago.—Lethbridge Herald.

News Notes

The Stake Sunday School Board visited the Lethbridge Ward on Sunday last.

On thing sure people will hear more of the Easter sermon this year than usual because there will be fewer new hats and suits to admire.

Miss Anne Snow, J. U. Allred, Henry Gibb and Rhonda Dahl were the speakers at the First Ward Sacrament meeting on Sunday evening last.

Mrs. McBride returned home on Saturday last after spending the winter in the south. Although greatly improved in health, she is far from well yet.

At the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday the beet contract for this year was ratified at $5 per ton and a fifty fifty division on sugar content and purity. Acreage signups are now going on.

I. B. Roberts left this morning with two cars of Red Label Beef for Federation at the Spring Shows in Calgary and Edmonton. I. B. says if he is not near the top it will be because the quality of the stock is improving rapidly at these shows.

NOTE:

The above was received by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Nilsson from one of their sons in Utah. As stated on Mar. 30th. this splendid couple will celebrate their Golden Wedding.

THE RESURRECTION AND

THE LIFE

Another Easter is upon us. It is the Easter message that helps us to see more clearly the Divine import of the resurrection, and the life beyond. From this we build up a beautiful conception of the future life.

The great question of antiquity was, "If a man die, shall he live again?"

While some systems of religion held out some faint hope of a shadowy existence beyond the grave it was Christianity which gave humanity an adequate ideal and sufficient reason for this hope. He whose resurrection we commemorate next Sunday brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel.

We need not be alarmed by the apparent uncertainty and professed indifference of some to this hope. Such indifference and uncertainty is largely due to our absorption in the physical science and in the material welfare of humanity. This is but a passing fashion. Thinking men realize that a general loss in faith in immortality would cut the nerve of altruistic effort and weaken our moral sanctions.

THERE ARE NO LOSERS

For the past several months the Contest Work of the Mutual Improvement Associations in the various wards has been going. Work in story telling of the very finest kinds of stories. Speech making by the "M" Men and Gleaner Girls, all being encouraged to go as far as they could themselves, and then many willing to assist the others to better their own efforts. Music in all its lines, with the idea in mind of getting as many as possible to take part in as many ways as possible.

During the past six weeks, interest and effort has centered on the Contest numbers, and hours and hours of time has been spent by the participants and the coaches and directors in this work. First tryouts in the individual wards, known as Ward Honor Night, where all these numbers were given and the selections made for representatives in the Stake Finals, and during the past week the Stake Finals have been held, and it is amazing the talent that is gradually being developed in all kinds of public performance. To hear the retold stories of the Juniors, both boys and girls from 15 to 17, and to hear the splendid speeches of the "M" Men and Gleaners, young men and women from 17 to 23 is simply wonderful, to say nothing of the masterly rendition of the Contest musical numbers.

So we say, There are No Losers. And is it not true. In the ward finals many have lost out, and have not appeared in the Stake Finals, but have they lost? Is not the experience they had this year the foundation on which they may build a better structure next year. Surely it should be. And, among those who appear in the Stake Finals, all cannot be first. But, have they lost? Again we say no. A person cannot put forth the effort required to participate in this kind of work, either in individual competition or in group work, and not be benefited by every effort put forth. And, after all is said and done that is the purpose and object of Mutual work: improvement to the individual and to the group. So again we say, There is honor in participation, there is honor in winning, there is honor in losing, because it is the losers who make the winners work hard to claim first place. It has been a good contest and "There are No Losers."

the role of a middle-aged German parent who, although the war has been past history for a decade, is still a bitterly nationalistic partisan.

Violent in his accusations against the French, he inspires his entire community, a small town in post-war Germany, to subscribe to his own point of view.

His neighbor, Nancy Carroll, had been the sweetheart of Barrymore's son, a German soldier who was killed in the war. When Phillips Holmes, the French youth who killed him, and has since suffered a profound remorse, comes to tell the dead man's family of his deed, Nancy intercepts the errand. Should Holmes tell the father, she feels sure the old gentleman would kill him. Holmes meets the family, but because of Nancy's entreaties, he refrains from telling them the harrowing facts that have preyed on his soul.

But Barrymore soon forgets his nationalistic fervor, and becomes very friendly toward Holmes. And Nancy falls in love with the youth. Holmes is determined that he must make a clean breast of it, and tell Barrymore of the part he played in Nancy's former sweetheart's death.

He is on the point of carrying out his resolve when the pinnacle of drama is reached and all ends happily for the sweethearts.

It is the first time that Barrymore has ever portrayed such a role in the talkies, and he carries the delineation of the hard-headed, but lovable old patriot with a full measure of his accustomed skill.

Lionel Barrymore last year received first prize for acting honors from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. He is the eldest member of America's most famous

RICH GOLD DEPOSIT AT THREE DUCK LAKE

What is probably the richest surface showing of gold bearing ore disclosed in recent years has been uncovered during the past few weeks at Three Duck Lake, which lies in Northern Ontario just west of Muskoka station on the main line of the Canadian National Railways. Samples of ore, shipped out for assay by the Canadian Government Department of Mines and by other assayers, run from $100 to $114 to a ton. The richness of the ore is emphasized by the fact that the average gold content of the famous Porcupine area is less than $10 a ton. According to the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian National Railways the present ore body occurs in a belt of sedimentary rocks of pre-Huronian age, the geology of the district being very similar to that encountered at Kirkland Lake and other important gold areas of the Dominion.

With The Legislators

Interest in the legislature this week has centered mainly around two debates, one on the income tax bill and the other on the proposed cuts in the indemnities on members.

Both have provoked lengthy discussions and at the time of writing have not yet been disposed of.

The week has seen George H. Webster, veteran Liberal leader, right back in his old form. He led the attack on the income tax bill and in this received strong support from W. R. Howson and both the Labor and Conservative benches.

Mr. Webster went one better than Premier Brownlee's resolution proposing a cut of 10 per cent. in the indemnities by moving an amendment putting the reduction at 25 per cent.

R. M. McCool, U. F. A., Cochrane, then moved a subamendment to reduce all sessional indemnities to $1200 but with $600 for travelling expenses to rural members.

Mr. Webster pointed out that times were not normal and the speech from the throne had plainly said that members must do their share to help in retrenchment. The Legislature was going to ask the people to assume severe tax burdens and it was only fair that members should set an example. He thought men who sought to impose new taxation at this time should do their share in no uncertain terms.

W. E. Payne, Conservative, Red Deer, gave strong support to the Liberal amendment, while Dr. H. W. McBlin, Conservative, Calgary, favored the original motion of Premier Brownlee.

A. M. Matheson, U. F. A., Vegreville, supported the subamendment intimating that he would go so far as to reduce indemnities to $1000 with travelling expenses for rural members.

Fred J. White, Labor leader, opposed any such drastic cuts as those suggested by the amendment and subamendment.

Mr. Webster was in fine form when he threw down the gauntlet in the income tax debate. He declared the present was not the time to impose further tax burdens on the public. The Liberal members had warned the government time after time he said, of the need for economy and retrenchment. But the government never wanted any suggestions.

He questioned the fairness of taking away the service tax from the cities in order that the government might impose an income tax. He was well aware he declared, that the Premier could defend the imposition of the tax and make it sound convincing. "He makes wonderful statements," said Mr. Webster, "but then he has to make wonderful speeches to defend anything that comes from the government benches. But sometimes I wonder whether he is talking about a chestnut horse or a horse chestnut."

W. R. Howson, supporting his leader's attack on the bill, declared that in these times no new tax should be imposed if it could be avoided. "If this province can get along without putting new taxes on the people this should be done. It is a wrong principle to place an additional burden on the people when they already feel the pinch of depleted earnings," he declared.

"It is wrong to further depress the spirits of our people when they are already discouraged."

"The matter of extracting an additional $1,374,000 from the taxpayers in a manner in which it has never been done before is too serious to be done suddenly and without the most careful thought."

Mr. Howson quoted total of four successive deficits when no income tax was imposed. He did not think the tax at this time was justified. He had a feeling, he said and it is shared by many people, that the full facts of our financial position have not been made known.

For example, the Premier had told the public that this province could not go into the money market and borrow one dollar. Within a month the money market had said to us not only will we loan you five millions, we will loan you twenty-five millions.

Mr. Howson declared that retroactive legislation was wrong in principle; much more so was retroactive taxation. The act, he declared, provides for the payment of two years' income taxes within 10 months for those who scrape up the cash. It means the payment of 1 1/2 years' taxes plus interest for those who cannot scrape up the cash. It means 1 1/2 years' taxes within the next fiscal year.

He declared that if the income tax had come to stay the municipalities should have a share in it.

The Liberal attack on the income tax bill received support from the Conservatives. D. M. Duggan opposed the bill and suggested that a better means of raising revenue would be to increase all present taxation by 7 1/2 per cent. rather than impose new forms of taxation.

Other Conservative speakers also opposed the bill as did the Labor benches. Fred White moved an amendment to the effect that the proposed bill was a tax on the subsistence wages of the workers. He declared that the bill did not conform to the principle of an income tax bill at all. In this contention he was supported by C. L. Gibbs, Edmonton.

J. Russell Love, U. F. A., defended the measure endeavoring to show the pressing need for further revenue. P. A. Miskew, U. F. A., also favored the bill as did Hon. Perren Baker, Minister of Education.

Efforts on the part of Provincial Government to persuade the Dominion to abandon the Income Tax field and representations to have the Dominion use its organization in collecting the Provincial tax had proved unavailing, declared Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer in defending the bill.

Many speakers joined in the debate, all the U. F. A. members supporting the measure with the opposition solidly against it.

The government motion to refer the Turner Valley gas problem to the agriculture committee met considerable opposition, but it was finally carried after an amendment had been defeated.

George H. Webster strongly attacked the Government for not having a definite scheme to lay before the House on this most important question. They had ever since last year to make up their minds to a policy. W. R. Howson also took the same stand declaring that the premier well knew what was wanted and the House was entitled to know what legislation was proposed before the matter was sent to the Committee and a lot of experts brought in.

Premier Brownlee defended the stand of the Government declaring there had been no delay and they wanted to hear all those who were interested in the field with a view to making a satisfactory agreement with all concerned.

Emergency legislation by the provincial government to permit resident tax payers in local improvement districts to work out on public improvements a reasonable percentage of arrears of municipal taxes was urged in a resolution moved by Frank R. Falconer, Athabasca, Liberal.

At the suggestion of Premier J. E. Brownlee the discussion was adjourned in order that a resolution acceptable to all parties in the House could be submitted.

Sweepstakes under government supervision or charitable public revenues found champions in the persons of Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal Wetaskiwin, and Milton C. McKeen, U. F. A., Lac St. Anne. If authorization from the Dominion were obtained it was contended there would be little or no need of levying an income tax.

The following resolution was moved by J. M. Dechene, Liberal, St. Paul: "That this assembly regrets the decision of the Dominion Government not to proceed with the construction of the extension of the Bonnyville-St. Walburg and the Heinsburg-Frenchman's Butte gaps of the Canadian National Railway lines from Edmonton to St. Walburg and Edmonton to Turtleford."

That under existing conditions the farmers of all the great district north and east of Edmonton have no direct access to eastern markets and are compelled to pay a back haul on all the products shipped out and on merchandise imported into that district.

That we respectfully urge the Dominion Government to reconsider the matter and to proceed with the construction of the said lines during the coming season."

Dr. Dechene made an eloquent plea for the northern settlers in support of his resolution. He received strong support from W. C. Farquharson, U. F. A., and Hugh W. Allen, U. F. A., Grand Prairie and also R. M. McCool, U. F. A., Cochrane, all of whom pointed to similar conditions in their own constituencies. A. M. Matheson, Vegreville, and D. M. Duggan, Conservative leader, also gave it their blessing and the debate was adjourned by L. A. Giroux, Liberal, Grouard.

Dividing on non-party lines the House adopted a motion by H. H. Dais

STOP AND THINK

Health is a precious possession, but it is one which most people do not appreciate until they are threatened with its loss. We seldom consider just how much good health means to us. We rather take good health for granted, and seldom make any real effort to improve it or to keep it until we are faced with losing it.

It is not desirable to spend all our time thinking about health. We know what a nuisance the health crank is, and how irritating is the person who always wants to tell us about his pains and aches. It is, however, equally foolish to ignore health entirely, and to disregard symptoms of abnormal conditions of the body.

What we should strive for is the happy medium which avoids extremes. Health should receive a reasonable amount of attention and consideration. Without becoming food faddists it is well for us to put into practice certain principles with regard to what we eat.

We are practically unaware of our body functions as long as they go on normally. We should realize, therefore, that when discomfort is felt or where there are signs of unusual occurrences, while there is no need for alarm, still it is foolish to disregard them. The body has considerable reserve strength and ability to adjust itself to changing conditions, but it is a mistake to call upon reserve unless this is necessary. It is much better to help than exhaust nature.

It is surprising how many people will go on, day after day, ignoring conditions which clearly indicate that there is something wrong, that nature requires assistance. Persistent coughs are overlooked, progressive loss of weight is not given attention, unusual fatigue is not investigated, and thus it is that many cases first present themselves to their doctor with a well advanced tuberculosis.

There is always some cause for what is called indigestion. If this persists or recurs, it means that what ever condition is responsible continues to be present. Lumps do not occur in the normal female breast; unusual discharges do not come from the normal body; ordinary sores heal and do not break down again.

It is because such happenings as these do not receive prompt attention that cancer is allowed to develop beyond the stage at which it can be cured. While they are not always signs of cancer, still the patient can not tell whether they are or not. There is only one safe way to act, and that is to find out from the doctor, in every case, what is the true nature of the condition.

The bodies are those of Eugene Edward Olsen and Emanuel E. Bode. Plenty of food and ammunition were found in their cabin, and a few skins scattered around the shack. They were killed in their bunks by stabbing and their bodies were then hacked to pieces with an axe.

Interest in parliamentary circles has already been aroused over the forthcoming Liberal convention in this city on June 16-18 when a new party leader to succeed J. W. McDonald, K. C. of Macleod, who recently resigned, will be chosen.

Already several names have been mentioned for the leadership among them being George H. Webster, Liberal House leader, W. R. Howson, who has been prominent in all the important debates this session.

In addition to choosing a new leader, J. Boyd McBride, secretary of the Provincial Liberal Association, told your correspondent that the Convention would also formulate a new Provincial and complete a new Provincial organization.

It is expected that Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Dominion Liberal Leader will be present as well as Hon. T. D. Pattullo, British Columbia leader, Hon. H. G. Gardiner, Saskatchewan Liberal leader and Mr. Mc Kay, Manitoba Liberal leader.

There is a heavy agenda for the convention to face and it is expected that a tremendous amount of business will be transacted.

As things now stand it looks as if the present session of the legislature will not end until at least the end of the month.

Since the above was written the house gave second reading to the income tax bill and voted in favor of the original government motion for a 10 per cent. cut in seasonal industries after two non-party divisions on the amendment and the subamendment. The vote on the subamendment was the closest of the present session being 26 to 28.
